Spring Vibes At Skyline

We are halfway through Spring Semester already, with commencement right around the corner. These are exciting times and the energy on campus is still going strong. March was the month of conferences, each serving our diverse communities on campus. We started with a full day of learning, sharing, and growth at the SMCCD's First Inaugural Queer Students of Color Conference (QSOCC). We listened to foster youths' experiences on campus at the Guardian Scholars/NextUp Program's Our Foster Youth Voices presentation, visited with recruitment officers at the Spring 2024 Transfer Fair and Conference, and explored career paths at the Career Conversations & Explorations Night. Finally, students, faculty, and staff relieved midterm stress with an epic pie-throwing activity at Active Mind's Stress Less event. We capped off the week before Spring Break with our very successful President's Breakfast with generous donors, tireless organizers, and student volunteers.

President's Breakfast

It was a packed house Thursday morning as community leaders, donors, and employees gathered at Farallon for an early start to the day at the President's Breakfast. They were treated to a sneak peak performance of our Spring musical, Legally Blonde, followed by a debut video presentation of the Comunidad Story. The morning commenced with a live pledging, which raised over $89,000 for the President's Innovation Fund! Thank you to all our generous donors!

Career Conversations & Exploration Night

Students stayed late to attend the Career Conversations and Explorations Night on campus where panelists shared their tips for navigating a wide variety of fields, including Business, Entrepreneurship, & Management, Arts, Language, & Communications, Science, Technology, & Health, and Society and Education.

Pie Your Professor

What could be more stress-relieving than to cover your beloved professor with a plate of Reddi Wip? Considering the long lines of eager pie throwers - not much! Brave faculty and staff volunteers donned ponchos and shower caps for an invigorating cream facial during Stress Less Week to the delight of coworkers and students.
